

Overpass debate continues

The lively debate in Pleasanton over which is the best way of getting people and vehicles over or under Interstate 680 has spread to neighborhood concern over traffic speed along Foothill Road and related routes. Stoneridge Drive overcrossing (top arrow) is backed "because financing is available as soon as the Stoneridge Regional Center is started." West Las Positas (bottom arrow) is scheduled for a full interchange, but the state says funding is not available "within the foreseeable future." There is some support in Pleasanton for a local bond issue to provide the $3 million-plus for that interchange. Meanwhile, home owners along Muirwood Drive — south of Stoneridge — are hammering the city council about controlling "excessive speed" along that drive. An overcrossing at Stoneridge Drive might relieve some of Muirwood's problem, but Stoneridge Drive home owners say they will resist any such freeway span that builds traffic flow along their street. And there is similar resistance from residents along West Las Positas for much the same reasons. While the debate goes on, all cross-city traffic, including school buses and fire engines, must travel south to the Bernal Avenue interchange (lower left in photo) or north to I - 680 in order to get around the four-mile-long barrier presented by I - 680. Both the Stoneridge and Las Positas extensions are designed to tie Foothill Road (far left of photo) to Hopyard Road, with West Las Positas slated to continue eastward to Santa Rita Road and on to Livermore.

City considers raising fees for fire service

PLEASANTON — The city council will take a preliminary look Monday at the prospect of higher charges for its fire service to Castlewood, Happy Valley and other unincorporated areas near the city limits.

Although the report is preliminary and a study over the next six months is recommended, it's possible that taxes in those unincorporated areas could rise by 13 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

That would happen if the city council decided that revenues to the city ought to keep up with the costs of providing the service.

Cost of providing service is difficult to determine, according to Assistant to the City Manager Jim Walker. One method is to learn the unit cost of fire protection and multiply it times the assessed value in the contract area divided by the total assessed valuation.

Using that method, the cost to Happy Valley Road, Castlewood, the Remen tract on Vineyard Avenue near Vintage Hills, and a small section of Stanley Boulevard near First Street amounts to $45,000.

These are not actual costs of going to a fire — there have been few fires in these areas — but they represent a pro-rated share of the cost of maintaining the fire department, including administrative costs.

Currently Alameda County is paying the city $37,000, which is $8,000 below the computed costs, including overhead. If the city council were to decide to raise the fees to $45,000, it would mean a 13 cent tax hike, said Walker. It would mean around a $13 to $20 a year annual tax hike for most residents in affected areas, said Walker.

The county pays the city for the fire service and puts the cost on the resident's tax bill. If the city decides to terminate fire service, it would have to give the county 60 days notice prior to the beginning of the next fiscal year. The next time the contract could be renegotiated would be April, 1977. For that reason, the staff has recommended a deeper study of the issue to be ready by January 1, 1977.

The city does not intend to terminate the contract, but is interested in having more control over several factors affecting firefighting in those areas, said Walker. For example, water pressure is low in some areas, water mains are not good, and the city has no input into building inspection and planning which would remove potential fire dangers, he said.

The staff is also recommending some fire safety improvements at Komandorski Village. If the housing authority would install smoke detectors and additional exits from second story dwellings, it would be worthwhile for the city to cut its fire service charge from $4,800 annually to $2,400, according to Walker's report.

Councilman denies stance on pipeline

PLEASANTON — Councilman Frank Brandes made it clear to The Times yesterday that he is not one of the three council members who opposes a local vote on the LAVWMA pipeline question.

The Times had quoted Councilwoman Joyce LeClaire as saying that three fellow councilmembers support the pipeline without prior voter approval. They would ask voters only for approval of an extra 4 million gallons per day to be set aside for industrial users.

"Joyce LeClaire has the right to speak for Joyce LeClaire, but she is not speaking for me," said Brandes. "When all of the financial information about the pipeline is presented to our city council, we will be able to see how the council feels."

Livermore and Valley Community Services District have had information about the pipeline's finances, and they have acted on that information, said Brandes.

The Livermore City Council decided Monday night it would go to a vote on the local share of the pipeline and VCSO board followed suit on Tuesday.

Muirwood speeders cause concern

PLEASANTON — Residents' request for more traffic controls on Muirwood Drive will be discussed by the city council Monday.

The residents have been alarmed by motorists traveling the street at 35 miles per hour or more and feel stop signs should be installed at three intersections and the speed limit at Muirwood Park should be reduced to 15 miles per hour.

Currently the posted speed limit is 25 mph, but a survey showed that the "critical" speed on the street is 34 mph. The critical speed is the figure which or below which 85 percent of the traffic travels.

Lamb has contended that the critical speed is a sort of "natural" speed limit and that it is difficult to cite motorists going under the that speed.

California's basic traffic law says the motorist must travel a "reasonable and proper" speed according to conditions for driving. The net result of this is that a motorist with a good lawyer can beat a traffic ticket if street conditions at the time of the violation justify the motorist's speed, Lamb told a meeting of the city traffic advisory committee Tuesday.

"The dilemma is the residents tell us the speed is too fast. I've sent my opinion to the city attorney," said

Lamb. "We can't enforce the speed limit below the critical speed."

The presence of a patrol car can slow down motorists in its vicinity "although after this story appears, it may not do that," said Lamb. "They may not respect the 25 mph limit."

There are strict regulations on radar speed traps which for all practical purposes wipes out the police department's ability to cite cars traveling under the critical speed limit, said Lamb.

A patrol car could get behind a speeder and clock him or her by going the same speed for awhile, but it's difficult to find enough open road to do that, said Lamb. Besides, such a diligent chase could create a few safety problems of its own, he said.

The best solution to the dilemma — apparently the only one — is the long-term education of the motorist to keep speeds down.

Lamb was reminded that some Muirwood area residents focused their attention on the slower stopping speeds at 25 mph vs. 35 mph. While under controlled experimental conditions this could make a difference, in practice the shorter stopping distance is not likely to prevent much damage or loss of life. The real solution is to teach kids not to run out into the street, he said.

Century old Livermore home gets new life

LIVERMORE — The home of a Livermore physician, built more than 100 years ago, was moved yesterday from its South L and Fourth Streets location to South L and College Avenue.

It took the movers several hours yesterday morning to get the structure transported to its new location. The crew had difficulty slipping the house underneath power wires. A Pacific Gas and Electric worker had to use a crane to lift the heavy power lines out of the path of the building's roof.

That problem cleared up, the building was towed down L Street, but workers held up traffic to maneuver around a camper that was parked in the house's path.

The building was built — or commissioned, no one is sure — by a physician named Taylor in 1875. Taylor came to Livermore from Pennsylvania, practiced for a time in San Francisco, and moved back to Livermore.

Bert Duke and Rick Corbett, private developers, purchased the South L and Fourth Streets property to build a two-story retail commercial building.

"But we felt a real need to preserve the home," Corbett said.

The two men acquired a half-acre piece of property on the old Livermore Sanitarium site to relocate the Taylor home. The new site sports a number of large trees.

Duke and Corbett plan to renovate the structure, now outfitted as five small apartments.

They have hired a renovating team from the East Coast to redo the structure as a one-family house.

The cost to acquire the new site, move and renovate the structure totals approximately $50,000.

No bids received to move church, but plans go on PLEASANTON — The Community Presbyterian Church didn't receive any bids on its move to a new site on Mirador Drive, but that is not expected to halt the move.

Pastor Robert Vogt said yesterday that the church did not allow enough time for the bidding process. He said the building committee was to meet last night and was expected to extend the bidding period.

Eight subcontractors had picked up plans and specifications for the move from the site at Second and Neal streets and reassembly of the church building at the Mirador site.

The delay is very unfortunate, said Vogt. Partly it was due to a delay in approval by the city and partly by the congregation's own slow steps, he said.

The move is now three to four months behind schedule and that is beginning to cost money, he said. "A contractor told me that his costs are rising by 5 per cent every 90 days," said Vogt.

The congregation had hoped to be at the new location by Christmas, but now it will be some time after the first of the year.

Moving day on L Street

The home of a Livermore physician built 100 years ago was moved yesterday from its location at South L and Fourth Street to South L and College Avenue, but only after a utility crew managed to move power lines out of the way of the roof. The home will be restored and sold by a private developer.

Where a single turns when the jolt passes

"Sometimes, it takes a death in the family, or divorce, or some other disaster to clobber you into realizing you want more from your inner life than you have."

Counselor Jill Kidd says it a bit ruefully. For her, separation and an impending divorce started her along a self-growth path.

Meditation, work with dreams, more meditating, paying attention to the messages in her dreams, getting into better physical shape and joining groups to gain support were some of the ways the 28-year-old Livermore woman responded to her problems. She plans to help others discover new paths to peace, at a two-hour session Wednesday evening in the Anthropos Foundation meeting room, 1814 Catalina Court.

"Let's Share Our Places" was the original name of Jill's talk, but she plans now to talk about "The Inner Journey." Kicking off the discussion with information on how she began her growth process, she plans to draw willing audience members into a group discussion on the many possibilities open to them for self-growth.

Anthropos is a nonprofit foundation which offers a smorgasbord of classes, groups, counseling and even a Friday night singles' group. Jill's talk is part of a Wednesday night summer series which is held 8 to 10 p.m.; admission is $2 per session.

Coming up in August are: Vivian Holey on "Liberation — What's It All About?" (Aug. 4); Linda Smith on "Your Point of Power" (Aug. 11); Jean Hanson on "At the Treasure Chest" (Aug. 18) and Dorris Fagan on "Assertiveness and Self Direction" (Aug. 25).

Jill decided to talk about self-growth when she realized that people of all ages, especially many successful professionals who no longer have to struggle for survival, are looking for new ways to enrich their lives.

"They want to know where to sign up for a course, or buy a book that will teach them these things," she smiles.

"What I tell them is, it's important for them to develop a style that fits for them."

That sounds pretty vague, Jill admits, but she's ready with some suggestions for experiences to try:

Meditation, for one. "It's simply turning your eyes and your senses inside. It can take the form of transcendental meditation or some other technique. Meditating is a way of staying centered, of not always reverberating off other people. It's not indigenous to our culture, although Eastern cultures have always emphasized inner experiences."

Dreams are another tool for inner growth. "Most people don't remember them unless they're very vivid or frightening," she observes.

"Yet, dreams are symbolic statements about our waking life. There are all kinds of messages we get from them about our physical health, precognitive dreams."

"Patricia Garfield studied the primitive Senoi culture of Malaysia and discovered they remember and talk about their dreams every day. As a result, they have well integrated personalities, they are happier and have less mental illness than other people."

Besides being more in tune with their thoughts, dreams and feelings, Jill thinks people should also heed the signals their bodies are giving them.

"We should treasure our bodies and not abuse them by nutritional assault," she warns, including sugars, additives, insecticides and other substances in her list of abusive materials.

"And, consider little ailments a message from your body to you. Do you always have to get sick to take a day off from work and rest? Do you need to break a leg in order to slow down?"

"Ignore the little messages and you'll get a big one. Like cancer. Or a heart attack."

Jill sees a big movement in California toward growth experiences. Her talk at Anthropos, she hopes, will be just the beginning for people looking for experiences, perhaps not as showy and expensive as est or Esalen, but very enriching to their lives.

As she puts it: "There are a lot of doors to go in."

Police seeking wealthy trio in mass kidnaping

REDWOOD CITY — An all-points bulletin was issued Thursday for the arrest of three "armed and dangerous" wealthy young men for questioning in the Chowchilla school bus hijacking.

The bulletin named Frederick Newhall Woods IV, the 24-year-old son of the owner of a Livermore quarry where the 26 children and their school bus driver were imprisoned in a buried moving van for 18 hours last week.

It also named James Leonard Schoenfeld, 24, and his 22-year-old brother, Richard Allen Schoenfeld, sons of a San Francisco Peninsula podiatrist.

Alameda County authorities issued the bulletin asking law enforcement officers to "arrest for questioning" the three men.

It added: "Suspects considered armed and dangerous. Arrest warrants have not been issued, arrest on probable cause."

Alameda County Sheriff Tom Houchins said officials wanted to question young Woods' and his two friends. The three were not on the estate, and the elder Woods said he didn't know the whereabouts of his son.

"The three are subjects of the investigation. I would be interested in talking to them," said Houchins, emphasizing no warrants had been issued for their arrest.

Jensen said no arrest warrants have been issued because of a lack of evidence.

"From what we have seen now," the district attorney said, "there is not enough to issue an arrest warrant. But that doesn't mean we won't have that information in 15 minutes."

A well-placed source in the investigation of the baffling kidnaping, told the Associated Press that investigators wanted to examine personal and financial records of the younger Woods.

"When we talk about records," the source said, "we're talking about any and everything pertaining to this person's past. We want to know absolutely everything about him, from the day he was born."

The Woods family is related to the wealthy California Newhall family, whose patriarch was Henry Mayo Newhall, an enterprising Saugus, Mass. businessman who arrived in San Francisco in 1850.

He speculated on California's pioneer railroads by purchasing more than 143,000 acres of ranch, including 12,000 in Madera County, about 15 miles from Chowchilla.

Five sons formed the Newhall Land and Farming Company to develop the acreage, and the family corporation now holds vast investments in commercial and recreational ventures, agriculture, cattle operations, oil, gas and land.

Madera County Sheriff Ed Bates said the search of the Woods estate, about 10 miles southwest of here, would continue until authorities were "reasonably satisfied" that all evidence was uncovered.

Solid waste plan boost, not approval

Implementation of the county's controversial solid waste management plan, a state mandated, two-year study already seven months beyond deadline, is inching closer to acceptance, but still may face some serious hurdles.

Both Valley Community Services District (VCSD) and Livermore have approved the plan, while Pleasanton's City Council will review it Aug. 2.

Engineers for the Pleasanton Scavenger Co., which serves the city, want a provision in the plan to give permanent status to the Valley Avenue transfer station.

By state law, a majority of the cities containing a majority of the population of the county must approve the plan. All counties must file their plans with the state.

The plan must provide for recovery of 25 per cent of the resources from the solid waste stream by 1980. Alternate plans call for 67 per cent combined resource and energy recovery by 1980 and 92 per cent by 1990.

Newark has rejected the plan outright, while the City of Alameda is hedging on certain provisions.

Alameda in working with the U.S. Navy to develop an energy - from - garbage plan that they don't want scuttled by the county or the solid waste management board.

While they have received verbal approval of their plans from other cities in the county, they apparently are afraid that yet - to - be-elected city councilmembers who will sit on the solid waste board may reverse the agreement.

But as the revised county wide plan makes its rounds of cities and service districts representing unincorporated areas, county planning department staffers think the majority necessary for passage has been found.

LAVWMA board views 'super sewer' ballot

DUBLIN — With an August 20 deadline staring them in the face, Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency members last night attempted to nail down final ballot and funding answers so the proposed $20 million "super sewer" pipeline can be included on the November ballot.

Board members agreed that the measure will have to face voters after Livermore City Council and Valley Community Services District Directors, two of three members to the joint powers agency, agreed that taxpayers should be consulted before a charge of from $2.74 to $3.45 is added to their monthly bills.

Pleasanton had not taken a formal stand on the issue, but a poll of council members showed a majority favored asking approval only for an extra capacity pipe for future industrial users, and that the basic pipeline for residential users be mandated.

Discussions then hinged on whether to ask voter approval of two questions:

(1) Should the basic 15.72 million - gallon - per - day (mgd) residential pipeline be built and (2) should an extra 4 mgd be set aside solely for industrial users in Livermore and Pleasanton only?

Opinions seem to conclude that the basic pipeline could be voted on valley - wide, and the results merged to see if a majority approved the project. Project Supervisor Dan Murphy said that if one area's voters did not agree with the majority to the project, the pipe could be reduced in size to the next smaller increment.

LAVWMA financial staff members said that if voters don't approve the project, it could not issue bonds or tax to finance construction.

Zone 7 agrees to support Army study of valley water

LIVERMORE — After insuring that the supply of water for agricultural uses would not be ignored, directors of the county Zone 7 water management board Wednesday night agreed to support a study of the valley's water problems by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

At the board's regular monthly meeting, two representatives from the Corps sought a letter of concurrence from Zone 7 directors to let the study proceed.

The Corps made a full study of the Upper Alameda Creek Basin in September, 1962 which resulted in the construction of 12 miles of levees and channel improvements from Niles Canyon to the San Francisco Bay. In April, 1975, Zone

7 petitioned Congressman Fortney Stark to request a review of the basin due to the rapid growth in the valley since the Sixties.

After a brief presentation outlining the scope of the proposed study, Corps representative Scott Sollers indicated the report would be finished by October, 1979. "I think we're a year behind what we set out two years ago to do," he said.

Zone 7 Director Richard Ryon complained that future water demand for agricultural usage appeared to decline by Corps estimates. According to their report, agricultural demand will decline from 8.92 million gallons per day (mgd) in 1973-74, to 6.25 mgd in 1980, 4.46 in 1990, finally falling to a low of 2.68 mgd in the year 2000. Sollers reacted quickly, saying "Agricultural usage is probably going to receive first analysis because of your concern."

Director Robert Pearson complained that the Corps should consult Zone 7 after completing phase one of its study, before making available a list of possible solutions to valley water problems in the phase two report.

Pearson pointed out that the Corps must get letters of concurrence from the Environmental Protection Agency, State Water Quality Control Board, and Zone 7, or the study won't take place. "We're in a veto position on this study," he said.

Sollers emphasized that Zone 7 members would be kept fully informed of the study's progress and would be consulted before a list of solutions is written.

The board then unanimously agreed to write a letter of concurrence, agreeing to implementation of the Corps study.

In other action, directors heard a presentation of the Livermore - Amador Valley Water Management Agency's (LAVWMA) proposed pipeline to carry sewage from the valley to San Francisco Bay. No action on the presentation was taken.

Senior Californians

The Seniorama at Santa Cruz will be the destination of the Senior Californians of Dublin and San Ramon Saturday, July 24.

The group will celebrate birthdays of the month at a party Thursday, July 29 at Shannon Community Center at 11:30 a.m. Members bring a sack lunch with coffee provided.

I.O.O.F.

The Livermore Odd Fellows Lodge has contributed $100 to the Yuba City School Children Relief Fund.

A $100 contribution was also made by the lodge to the Henry L. Stratmann Memorial Fund at the Odd Fellow and Rebekah Children's Home in Gilroy. Stratmann was the recording secretary of the Livermore lodge and a trustee of the Children's Home for many years.

Hugh Nelson, Jr., grand junior warden of the Grand Encampment of California, will pay the Livermore Lodge an official visit Aug. 10.

An initiation of new members of the Livermore Rebekah Lodge is set Aug. 4 with a practice for the ceremony July 29 at 7:30 p.m. at the I.O.O.F. Temple.

The Rebekahs are also anticipating an official visit by Pat McLean, district deputy president of the Rebekah Assembly, Aug. 19. Dorothy Murch is taking reservations for the Oct. 9-10 trip to the Red Carpet Motel in Reno at $29.50 per person with a comparable rebate upon arrival.

Anthropos

Jill Kidd offers the suggestion "Let's Share Our Places" to members of the Anthropos Foundation in a July 28 program at 1814 Catalina Ct., Livermore.

The program from 8 to 10 p.m. is open to the public at a 2 per person donation. Anthropos is a non-profit organization dedicated to individual and family development through classes, counseling, weekly programs and lectures.

For more information call 443-1818.

Consciousness-raising

The Consciousness-Raising Task Force for the Tri-Valley Chapter of N.O.W. announces a new series to follow the initial consciousness-raising workshop sponsored by N.O.W.

CRII will explore new topics while continuing the individual growth process experienced by members in the first group. Proposed topics include "Oppression of the Child-Woman," "Sisterhood and Fear of Feminism," "Women and Drugs."

Women who have participated in the first group are eligible for the new series which will meet Thursdays in August (5, 12, 19 and 26). Location of meetings is the Pleasanton Library from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Women experienced in leading such groups will facilitate the series such as Alyce Loveless, Dorris Fagan, Ann Smith, Judy Matheson and Carol Toolan. For more information contact Coordinator Ilse Duncan at 828-1135 or Ms. Toolan at 829-4463.

New goals for cultural center

Officers have changed command, and the Pleasanton Cultural Arts Council is setting new goals for this fall. Receiving the president's gavel from outgoing council head, Charlotte Severin, was Portia Wade as Council Member-at-Large Jan Fevury (left) and City Representative Ann Carroll (right) look on. Bulldozers began this month to prepare for completion of landscaping around the Cultural Arts Center. A large outdoor sculpture has been donated to the center by the Ark Nursery School which received a county grant to create a bicentennial sculpture with a professional artist and the school children. The sculpture and landscaping will be dedicated in September with a champagne reception and band concert. The council also plans a fund-raising event to finance completion of the parking lot adjoining the center. Membership in the Cultural Arts Council is open and includes privileges of a discount on all classes at the center, invitations to previews, lectures, and mailings about all activities and programs. For information contact Barbara Joan Smith at 846-2088.

PWP

Communicating with teenagers will be the topic of a discussion for the July 28 meeting of Parents Without Partners led by Mike Petrillo, Livermore counselor.

The 8 p.m. meeting at the Livermore Library is open to any parent who is single as a result of divorce, separation, death or unmarried status.

A coffee for newcomers to the club is hosted every Sunday evening. For more information contact Vi Schinkel at 846-0959, Ed Wilkinson at 846-9095 or the answering service at 443-0802.

Singles

Mixing, an organization for single adults, explores Twentieth Century dating at its July 30 meeting at 1818 Catalina Ct., Livermore.

Jackie Stratton is the guest speaker for the program from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m.

Single adults are welcome to the informal social evening at $2 per person, and may call 455-0871 or 447-2434 for further information.

Seniors

Seniors citizens interested in learning 20 ways to use zucchini are invited to a demonstration by Maxine Plastino, the "Zucchini Lady," Friday July 23 at the Carnegie Building in Livermore.

To place a reservation, contact the Senior Citizens Center at 443-1150. The demonstration is set from 10:30 a.m. to noon, and includes a door prize and refreshments.

Bridge

The Sword of Hope Bridge Association invites bridge-playing smokers and non-smoking guests to join its Aug. 5 game at the Homestead Savings and Loan Association community room in Dublin.

Members bring a lunch, with coffee provided. Play begins at 10 a.m.

The group is dedicated to helping smokers kick their habit by offering an enjoyable activity at which smoking is not permitted. Men are welcome to join the group, as well as women. For reservations, bridge players must contact Audrey Huseman at 828-4654 or Jessie Hart at 462-2512.

Toastmistress

A wine-tasting party combined with a potluck luncheon will celebrate the installation of new officers for the Livermore Toastmistress Club Saturday, July 31 at the Wente Winery in Livermore.

Those assuming new responsibilities at the noon event are Karen Wilson, president; Roberta Westbrook, vice-president; Betty Burgle, secretary; and Virginia McMillon, treasurer.

Guests are invited to make reservations with Julia Kleinecke at 447-1419 or Fran Rupley at 443-4576. The Toastmistress Club is organized to help women develop communication and leadership skills.

Livermore Senior Citizens

This Sunday, July 25, members of the Livermore Senior Citizens Club will have the opportunity to sign-up for half a dozen varied activities planned for late summer and fall. The meeting convenes at 1 p.m. at the Livermore Recreation Center. Next trip is to the Monarch Butterfly Parade at Pacific Grove Sunday, July 25. Buses will depart at 8:30 a.m. and return at 5:30 p.m. to the rec center.

August activities for the club include a trip to the San Francisco Ice Follies Aug. 18 at $8.80 per person, including transportation. The bus departs from the rec center at 11:30 a.m., returning at 6 p.m.

A performance of the musical, "George M.," on Senior Citizens Night will be the destination Aug. 19, with the bus departing the rec center for the Pleasanton fairgrounds at 7:15 p.m. and returning at 11:15. The Oakland Circus is the order of the day Aug. 26 at $8.80 per person, with the bus departure set at 11:30 a.m. and return at 6 p.m.

The popular fall tour of four Hawaiian Islands is set Oct. 12-25 at $660 per person.

Better postal service promised in Livermore

LIVERMORE — Improvements to the window service area of the U.S. Post Office in Livermore will be completed by the end of next week, Postmaster Dave Eldridge said yesterday.

But renovations to double the number of post office lock boxes will not be finished until the latter part of August.

Improvements to the post office were started last January.

Plans call for the window service areas to be moved further south. The four now in use will be replaced by five new windows equipped with increased storage space.

An additional entrance to the post office is already finished.

When the new windows are in operation, Eldridge said construction workers will move to the old area to begin expansion of the lock box facilities to two times its current number.

One major improvement will be hidden from public view, but will significantly increase the postal employees' work space.

The building, located on South Livermore Avenue across from Second Street, had a basement with access only through two staircases that had curves and landings.

Eldridge said the basement went largely unused because no equipment could be brought down the stairs.

An elevator was installed as part of the improvement, making that area accessible for employees' use.

The cost of the project is approximately $75,000, Eldridge said. Since the post office is a federal building, the federal government will pick up the tab.

The strike by area electricians has held up the project in Livermore, as it has the construction of the new Pleasanton Post Office.

Eldridge said there was no firm completion date, but he expected to begin using the new windows by the end of next week.

The entire project will be finished by late August, Eldridge estimated.

Once complete, the area of space available for use by the public will be nearly double what it is now.

Nielsen summer session

Pupils boosting reading skills

DUBLIN — Some three-dozen elementary level students attending Nielsen School are SCORE-ing big in reading, thanks to principal Betty Roberts and a staff of instructional aides and teachers volunteering their services.

The summer session students, in grades 2-5, were tested at the outset to determine their respective needs.

In a typical session, the student works on a one-to-one basis with a tutor, utilizing Success - Controlled - Optimal - Reading - Experience booklets with elementary one and two syllable words.

As the student goes down the column of words aloud with his tutor, the latter holds a counter and clicks it each time a word is pronounced correctly.

Students earn points for words mastered and may "save" them or "spend" them each day. A table in the room contains items the student may get, each item such as gum, Bicentennial calendars, tiny skill games, crayons, a necklace and pitholer, tagged with the points needed.

Betty Roberts learned of the remedial reading program while at a teachers' workshop.

Goal of the SCORE program is to teach skills needed to read words in the shortest period of time. The program teaches the fundamental reading skills necessary to read successfully above a fourth grade level.

It consists of the phonetically - controlled reading experience described above. In small gradual steps, the program systematically and sequentially tests, teaches, reviews and reteaches — when necessary — the basic phonetic skills ranging from individual letter sounds through three-syllable words.

Each student has a folder in which a daily ongoing record is kept of specific skills mastered, the number of correct and incorrect responses, and rate of progress through the program.

Built-in tests and recycle pages provide evaluation data on retention of specific skills.

According to John D. Cradler, a school psychologist with the South San Francisco Unified School District, preliminary research on the SCORE has shown an average gain in reading accuracy and comprehension of approximately six months, resulting from an average of five hours tutoring time over a five-week period.

Those students in the program at Nielsen take the remedial reading class as part of their two hours of academic and two hours of enrichment classes daily.

Teachers Alice Harwood and Vyann Evans have volunteered their services as has June Caldwell, a parent. Three paid instructional aides also work with the students.

Analyst A. Post hits RISE unit

A report of the California Commission for Reform of Intermediate and Secondary Education (RISE), originally presented to Wilson Riles, state Superintendent of Public Instruction, more than a year ago has been hit by legislative analyst A. Alan Post.

"We recommend that a statewide program of reform in intermediate and secondary education not be enacted at the present time," said Post.

Post agreed that high school students aren't learning as much as they should, but said the RISE program didn't touch on the main problem.

He said solutions should be tested on a pilot basis before the state plunges into such an expensive statewide program.

Post and his staff are hired by the legislature to analyze government programs and make recommendations, particularly about whether they're worth the cost.

Riles' original charge to a 37-member committee was to draft a framework for overhauling education in California's 1,600 intermediate and secondary schools. Riles said at the time, in July of 1974, that the commission's work was part of an effort by the State Department of Education to reform public education at all levels. He noted that reforms were already being implemented in the primary grades by the state's Early Childhood Education program.

Riles asked the RISE commission to: Envision an educational system that could respond continually to changing needs in the next quarter century, identify the skills and competencies individuals will need to survive and function effectively in the next 25 years, chart ways to make schools more effective, more enjoyable, and more conducive to a continued interest in learning, identify the goals California's schools should be meeting now and through the year 2000, and recommend immediate and long-range changes to bring about the desired results.

The RISE program squeaked through the state Senate last month and will be considered by the Assembly when the legislature reconvenes next month.

The program would be phased in over seven years. Embodied in a bill by Sen. John Dunlap, D-Napa, $53 million would be appropriated to start. Dunlap estimated the cost would rise to $141 million a year.

Post countered by saying the RISE reforms are "not directly related to the most pressing problems in California's intermediate and secondary schools."

He identified those problems as improving student achievement, reducing violence and vandalism and preventing dropouts.

Pleasanton Assembly

PLEASANTON — The Pleasanton Assembly of God Church, 6656 Alisal Rd. will continue their regular services this Sunday at 11 a.m. An evening service at 7 is also planned.

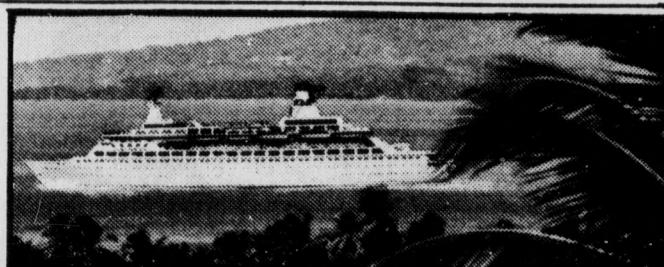

Ralph I. Cranston, well-known Evangelist from Saratoga, Calif. will come to minister to the Pleasanton congregation in the absence of their pastor.

The Rev. Cranston has traveled widely in America, Canada and throughout Europe, preaching the word of God. He plans to bring a youth group with him who will offer music and singing.

The theme for the Sunday evening service is "A Prophetic Message and the Moon in the Bible Prophecy."

Pit or coffin?

After Chowchilla's trauma is finally lifted, one question arising out of that kidnap will still remain, and it is a question only this Valley can answer: "What other terrible uses of that depleted gravel land are possible?"

Some (particularly the quarry industry) will likely reject any link between the burying of those 26 children and a gravel firm's responsibility over that land. But it is, tragically, only at such times of emotional strain when we might catch the attention of the public, or the industry which dominates this Valley's floor.

All benefits as to tax yield and employment aside, these facts relative to the billion dollar sand and gravel industry must still be understood:

1. Some 3000 acres of land within the heart of the Valley are being quarried with virtually no plan for ultimate use of that depleted ground;

2. There is no provision for responsibility over those wasted acres, and no safeguards set forth as to fencing, patrolling or otherwise protecting the public (particularly small children) from those abandoned pits;

3. There is not even any assurance of a useable road that would allow safety vehicle access into much of those 3000 acres, once the extractors have quit this Valley.

These are harsh facts. But no less than the knowledge of a huge van that somehow was buried in a depleted gravel area, and then stocked with provisions and utilities, and then stuffed with 27 lives, all without the knowledge of the company that owns the land, or the "security force" which patrols it or the county which must have ultimate responsibility for it.

The near - tragedy of Chowchilla's children leaves us with a warning, and a lot of unanswered questions.

State control

Stand by for some really good news

"Assembly Bill 3788 would give the state legislature exclusive power to initiate rent controls on private housing in California..."

The state is motivated in this direction to save us from "all that confusion" with local rent standards, community agencies, that sort of thing. And since local rent control is imperfect the answer, naturally, is to bring in Sacramento.

There is of course no evidence the state would do a better job in the uncertain area of rent control. Any more than there is evidence of state accomplishment in mass transit, in protecting the Bay, or in applying uniform rules to save the environment.

And it is from that box score the state legislature would now pre-empt the field of rental control. We can expect, naturally, that this state agency will also move into "related areas" such as terms of the rental contract, "rights" of the tenant, and "restrictions" to be placed on the property owner.

In England control over all rentals is held by the national government. The result, we are told, is that "once a tenant moves in it is almost impossible to evict them, for any reason, even including failure to pay the rent." The end result is that "few property owners will now rent their housing. They prefer to leave it vacant until they can find a buyer."

In this country we believe that free enterprise is the basis of all contractual arrangements. Never perfect, it has still been the benchmark of our nation's success. It is a system that works best for the majority, as can be seen by comparing this country's availability of rentals, or housing of any kind, with that of England, France or Sweden.

If state legislative control of rental units is as promising as Sacramento's intervention into our environment and our welfare, then the future for all rental housing — renter or rentee — is not very encouraging.

Valerie's campaign

Editor, The Times:

Your July 14th editorial "County govt. at the gate" claimed that the voters in the June 8 Primary were presented with little information on county issues. Let me explain why I think you are mistaken.

There were four active candidates for Supervisor in that race and there were eight candidates for Zone 7 seats also. In that situation we felt that it was unrealistic to expect to develop a wide range of issues through coverage by the newspapers. We thought that space limitations and competition for attention would rule it out. Because the incumbent was standing pat on his record and refusing to campaign actively, we decided that I had to place heavy emphasis on the defects in his record in my press releases and candidates' nights. At the same time we felt that the voters were entitled to know my position on a wide range of county issues.

We attempted to solve the problem of limited newspaper coverage in a number of ways. My volunteers distributed copies of an eight page campaign tabloid to over 30,000 homes in the First District. This tabloid is my major piece of campaign literature to date. In it I present my views on many of the county issues that you claim did not receive enough attention. I also discussed these issues at greater length at my coffees, in my speeches to civic groups, in my campaign newsletter, and in some of my press releases. Except for the press releases, none of this is likely to get reported in the newspapers although the information is going out to the voters. That is why I think that your perception of my campaign is incomplete.

You also claimed that Supervisor Murphy and I both told the voters that county government is "little more than a stepchild of state government," that "our hands are tied by the assembly's fiscal programs," and that "we can't do anything about the prison situation because of the courts." Even a brief look at my campaign tabloid would show that I do not share these views with Murphy. Instead of calling the county a "stepchild" I spent considerable space on its power and importance. I pointed out that while the state and Federal governments may mandate programs, the county's hands are not tied when it comes to fairness and efficiency in their administration. I singled out mental health and welfare as two areas where costly mismanagement could be corrected. I discussed the courts and jails and concluded that the county can improve both by using its power over court budgets to bring about reform.

BILL CAUBLE

Smokers

Sir Walter Raleigh is often remembered by history as having laid down his coat over a muddy glop of ground so that Queen Elizabeth I could defer using the royal foot soap for another six months.

Would that he could lay that same coat (after a thorough cleaning) over the tarred linings of my lungs so clean air could pass over them, as I remember that same English gentleman as being the bearer of tobacco when he set foot in Virginia.

It seems inconceivable that mature, sound-thinking adults would uproot a common weed, dry it, roll it up and light it, then deliberately inhale its deadly fumes. A skit by Bob Newhart several years ago brought out this absurdity, but smoking still abounds, stronger than ever.

The surgeon general of the United States, the highest ranking medical authority in the nation, declared more than 15 years ago that cigarette smoking is harmful to the public health. This message now adorns each pack of slow death sold, yet is thoughtfully ignored by its owner as he lights up yet another.

I myself don't smoke. Nor do I care if anybody else does. Suicide is a matter of personal choice.

But when another knowingly pollutes the air of a confined space, air that I and others prefer in its natural state, then civil rights are being violated.

There is no problem when arguing the rights of smokers versus those of non-smokers. Non-smokers have the right to breathe clean air.

Smokers have the right to smoke. But smokers rights stop when they interfere with the right to breathe clean air.

The Lung Association of Alameda County estimates that 30 million people are "very sensitive" to tobacco smoke, including those persons with allergic reactions to smoke, emphysema, or related illnesses that make breathing difficult.

Most smokers I know personally are courteous in every way until it comes to tobacco. Then they forget their manners and behave as slob, lighting up without asking if someone objects, throwing matches and flicking ashes everywhere, and blowing smoke in every face within airshot.

Not outlandishly big, this nose can nonetheless detect smoke in deserted elevators, long passageways and offices easily. Restaurants are a cinch, since smoke is such a contrast to the good taste of food.

And a smoker's car — just turn on the air conditioning, and take a good whiff of that stale smoke, with resultant tar lining each crevice of the vehicle. Then look above where the driving smoker sits — notice the yellowed headliner, or chrome visor panels encrusted with sticky tar. Doesn't that look yummy?

Like I said, it's fine with me if he wants to create a tarmobile, as long as he rides in it alone. But get in an air conditioned car on a hot day with a smoker when he's puffing away — windows up, smoke continuously recirculating — then you'll see why God invented vomiting.

FOCUS/The union millstone

'The loser is —'

You will have little trouble remembering the strike of Alameda County employees when property tax bills are received next year.

Nor, for that matter, will those county employees who did not walk out. Some among that number were, shall we say, cajoled to leave work and/or support the strike in one fashion or another.

And some of those union members who did walk are not too happy with union leadership. Not that they would praise the name of Fred Cooper.

Cooper was tagged early-on as "the enemy" by a union strike organizer, a woman who was the subject of a feature article in a South County daily sometime after.

The article was a real rouser. Made me want to rush-to-the-cause, grab hold of the union standard and fight those devils in the plush-carpeted seats of power.

Course you, Fred Cooper!

On the flip side of the record, Cooper and his supe-mates, especially John Murphy, are damned if they do and damned if they don't.

While the recently ratified settlement didn't exactly put the county in the poor house (to bring about the pact with county employees), it should tide the disgruntled county employee-strikers over until next year at this time.

But before the Service Employees International Union strike committee and entourage steal-off into the night, hoping to blend in with the crowd, a few matters remained unresolved.

We'll skip the matter of the court order and related goings-on for the time being, for its the bottom line that really matters now.

And the bottom line, at least for the Alameda County Fair Association, is written in red ink. But whether the august Fair directors will seek redress in the courts remains to be seen.

They have formed a committee to "look into the entire matter of this year's Fair." Did I hear someone shout "battle stations!"

The "amnesty" provision in the county employees strike settlement originally included some "gray area" words that could have been interpreted as getting the SEIU locals off the hook with the County Fair Association.

But the wording was rejected by negotiations for county management. It leaves, and rightfully so, the Fair Association open to independent courses of action.

And in that regard, the Fair Association Board of Directors has formed a committee to consider same, the panel consisting of Tom Kitayama, Dick McCarthy, George Jacopetti, William Gale, Joe Schenone, and Joe Perez. McCarthy is an Oakland attorney while Gale and Schenone have been judges and practicing attorneys for many years.

First in line to question the union's actions are the horsemen, as somewhat loosely represented by the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association.

When the parimutuel clerks walked out, the horsemen kissed goodbye to approximately $700,000 in purse money scheduled for the 12-day Alameda County Fair meeting.

While the reasons leading to the walk out are debatable, just try and convince an owner, trainer or jock that the net result will benefit them in the long run.

For somebody has to pay in the end.

Letters to the Times

Against pipeline

Editor, The Times:

It seems stupid to me that ABAG, Alameda County, the three valley communities and anyone else would allow any pipeline to carry sewage to San Francisco Bay. I don't favor polluting Alameda Creek, but isn't polluting San Francisco Bay just as bad? There are enough cities doing that already.

Why can't we convert our present secondary sewage treatment facilities into tertiary ones? The water that is discharged from a tertiary plant is drinkable and the solid effluent makes some of the cheapest and best natural fertilizer around. If people are squeamish about putting this water back into our water system then we could sell it for irrigation water. ... This could help pay for the system and make costs a few cents cheaper for homeowners. ... the fact we will be Bay Area leaders in the fight against water pollution will be worth it.

We scream about the quality of our air but what about the water in the bay? Let's scream about pollution in the bay too and strive for the modern, sensible way of handling our sewage treatment problems.

Fallon reaction

Editor, The Times:

As citizens of Pleasanton, we're sure that we are not alone in feeling part of our local heritage went up in smoke when the Fallon House was accidentally set ablaze. Certainly that historical old home would not have the same nostalgia if rebuilt.

After reading Sunday's Times we see the Fallon House incident is still burning. Our local Historical Society, up in arms over the loss of their latest project, is evidently out for blood ...

The Society's continual demand, as well as a certain councilman, that the fire officials who were involved be severely reprimanded; and the heavy coverage of a sympathetic press, has done the job on City Council. Both Fire Chief Withers and Fire Marshall Klenk have been demoted with a sizable loss in pay.

Was this home set afire maliciously? Was there an effort by the Fire Department to cover up this admitted negligence? Is there a past history of blunders by these Pleasanton fire department officials? We have read nothing to indicate any of these possibilities.

It appears to us that these two civil servants have been accused and found guilty of human error. There is no defense for this type of error but isn't our City Council over-reacting? We hope our City Council sheds its roll of Pontius Pilate and denies the Historical Society its pound of flesh.

Scholarship shock

Editor, The Times:

After writing the "College Planning Book," I've continued to study sources of scholarships and college admission standards. I would like to warn parents whose children are banking on state scholarships for the high priced private colleges such as Pomona, Mills, Stanford, U. of Pacific etc., that there is a combined wage ceiling of $29,900. That means if you are planning to get a part-time job, that would pay you $5000 a year and your husband is making $25,000 a year — even if you have 5 kids in college with mammoth expenses, you cannot qualify! Some of you may want to consider that fact before you end up working for practically nothing.

Also be aware that money earned or inherited, placed in a child's name is heavily counted as an asset. Sometimes when it is over $2000 it may also mean that you cannot qualify for a scholarship.

Those of you interested in the college scene, please be advised that there is a College Advisory Board from the American Association of University Women ready to give students help. We are also sponsoring the second annual College Faire in October of this year.

Renee Smith: Chairman
College Advisory Board A.A.U.W.

round the town

We went to the movies the other day.

It is a trip not often made. An entertainment not readily sought out. Time was when a once - a - week visit to the show house was one of life's necessities. Even at the princely price of ten cents per ticket, we depression - era kids still managed to convince our parents of the importance of it all.

"All the other kids are going, Mom!" .. "You promised!" .. "At least it will get us kids out from under foot for a few hours!" It was this last argument that usually prevailed. But at some considerable expense, for a depression - era mother.

On this more recent visit to a show house I gave the young lady at the window a five dollar bill. She gave me back one ticket, and change. "I asked for TWO tickets," I complained. "Then you'll need more money than that, buster," she replied.

There was that long period of my life when going to the movies was the only safe thing to do with a growing boy. For the last 15 years or so no parent in their right mind would turn a child loose on the cinematic world. No more than you'd drop the tyke into a snake pit without a stick.

Selecting the "right kind of show" for your child is one of the tougher assignments given parents. Particularly when the offspring rarely agree with your choice.

"But Mom! ... Disney is strictly for the bubble gum set!"

"Well, you are NOT going to the 'EXORIST' and that's that!"

I know of more families that have been busted up over the movie bit than have suffered from Dadeo's tipting. Kids have been known to pack up and pull out.

"Why did you run away from home, child?" the gentle gendarme asks.

"Because my parents have some awful queer ideas about movies," is too often the reply.

Once we over ruled our progeny's choice of a drive - in movie and insisted she and her girl friends attend the neighborhood theater, of our choice. They returned three hours later, looking none too happy.

"How was the show?" I asked, cheerily.

"Boring," they replied. "All about dumb adult sex, wife swapping, that kind of thing." From that day forward I stopped selecting safe movies for my offspring. Let them choose their own poison, says I.

"I simply HAVE to go to the Royal Theater this Saturday, Mom," I pleaded, dramatically. "It's the ninth chapter of the Buck Rogers series. And Buck was in terrible trouble last Saturday."

Buck was always in terrible trouble, as each Saturday episode came to a nerve - shattering close. He would go plunging off the edge of the planet, without his jet - powered wings, just as that episode ended. Following Saturday we would all rush back for the funeral, only to find that Buck had a spare set of jet wings in his back pocket. Zipped around the space ship to zap the Nogoodnik from the other side.

Our mayhem was simple, in those days. Tom Mix rode down the nasties, but always on his white horse. Gene Autry limited his sex interest to his trusted mount, singing to it occasionally: "I was 13 years old before my brother informed me that 'Men don't marry horses, silly.' I was 15 before I really believed him."

"WORSE THAN THE EXORIST!" That's the claim of today's best - selling flick. The more they can rip your nervous system apart, the greater the success. "JAWS" was another big money maker. "GODFATHER" did it to us twice, scraping up money and blood all the way to the bank.

So we got out of the movie habit. "Why should I pay three bucks to have somebody scare hell out of me?" I would insist, rejecting the little lady's plea for a cinematic adventure.

"But this is one movie where they won't scream at you, won't swear at you, won't hardly speak at all," she promised.

And so we went To "SILENT MOVIE." Mel Brooks and friends in pantomime. Hilarious slapstick. Laughed every minute of it. Got outside and couldn't remember a single line or scene that was really funny.

"Laurel and Hardy did it better," I announced, wisely.

"You seemed to be thoroughly enjoying every minute of it," she reminded me. "It's the first show we've been to in years that was funny, and clean, or mostly."

I couldn't deny that. It is even a show I would recommend to the family brood, if I thought they would understand it.

"I would have enjoyed it somewhat better if it didn't cost an arm and a leg to purchase two tickets," I said. "I could have attended 70 Buck Rogers' movies for the same money."

"You can go home and watch them really land on Mars, on the tube, and for nothing," she reminded me.

"That's a billion dollar epic guaranteed to scare hell out of all taxpayers," I replied. "At ten cents a trip, Buck Rogers was a much better investment. And funnier."

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The Professor went right up with dummy's ace of diamonds and proceeded to run off all of his seven spades.

West signalled strongly in clubs so East chucked all his clubs in order to hold on to four hearts and the king of diamonds.

The Professor who liked to have fun with the student who had put him in the slam remarked, "You wouldn't have bid all you did without the eight of hearts would you?"

Then the Professor showed East his hand, led the nine of hearts to dummy's ace and the deuce of hearts back toward his own hand. East had no defense. If he played low the Professor would win with his seven, cash the king, throw East in with the king of diamonds and make him give dummy the last trick with the queen of hearts. If East split his honors, South would take his king, throw East in with a diamond and make him give dummy the last two tricks with the queen-eight of hearts. West blamed East for the double and said that he would have led a club and beaten the contract if East hadn't doubled, but West was wrong. We will leave you readers to figure out how the hand makes with a club lead.

Ask the Jacobys

The bidding proceeds three clubs-pass-pass-double. A Missouri reader wants to know if the double is for penalty or for takeout.

The answer is that in all standard systems it is for takeout. Of course, partner can and should pass if he has club tricks.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

The Jewelry Lady

Jo Anne Amsbaugh has been known around Pleasanton as "The Jewelry Lady" ever since she started making jewelry in her home and sponsoring jewelry parties, and she has now parlayed her reputation and nickname into a bona fide business. The Jewelry Lady, located at 515 Main St. in Pleasanton, offers a complete selection of coral and silver Indian jewelry (Zuni and Navajo), gift items in ceramic, decoupage, hand-painted porcelain pieces, grape tray hangings and western greeting cards. Jo Anne plans to continue sponsoring jewelry parties and will have sand painters and Zuni silversmiths in the store on occasion.

PLEASANTON — Frederick R. Chester has been named vice president for finance and treasurer of Swenson's Ice Cream Company headquartered in San Francisco.

Chester's duties will cover the entire range of corporate monetary activities with a concentration in financial analysis and planning.

Chester, his wife Nancy and their two children live in Pleasanton.

DUBLIN — Roger Manning has joined United California Brokers in Dublin as an agent, it was recently announced.

His specialty in the Vintage Hills area, he has already been named Salesman of the Month at UCB.

He is an active member of Vintage Hills School, Pleasanton's District Community Advisory Council, and Pleasanton - Dublin's Knights of Columbus.

DUBLIN — Bryan Crocoll of Dublin Travel has completed the Basic Agency Product Knowledge Course at Trans World Airlines' Breech Training Academy in Overland Park, Kansas.

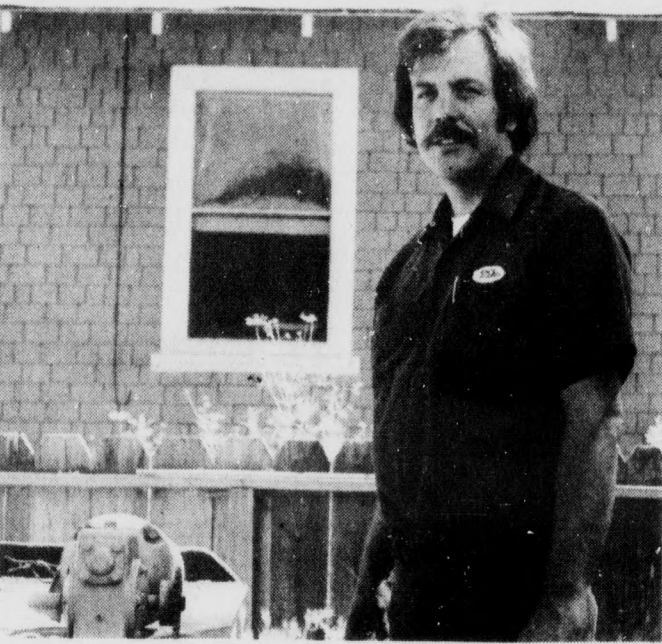

The intensive five-day course instructs new agency employees in the use of basic airline industry reference materials and the application of that knowledge to the processing of customer reservations and ticketing situations.

More than 9,000 travel agents and agency managers have graduated from the TWA courses.

Jeanery moves

The Jeanery has found a permanent location at 158 Maple St. in Livermore next to Potter's Pizza. The Jeanery is owned and operated by Joe and Anne Marver, Livermore residents. They boast the largest selection of jeans for guys and gals in the valley. The Jeanery's policy is to give the best fit in jeans in all sizes with the least hassle. Shown above celebrating the relocation are Anne and Joe Marver, and Maid of Livermore Dennette Hinchey.

New owner

Mike Young has assumed ownership of the motor repair shop located at 4415 Railroad Ave. in Pleasanton. Mike, who calls his firm A & B Electric Motor Service, has 10 years experience in motor winding and repair and lives in Pleasanton with his wife Jean, a local schoolteacher. Bring your small motor and power tool problems to Mike for a quick cure.

Local doctor returns

Dr. Thomas Forest of Pleasanton returned recently from Atlanta, Georgia, where he attended a four-day chiropractic symposium. This Life Dynamic Essential Meeting was held at the new 70-story Peachtree Plaza, the world's tallest hotel.

Approximately a thousand chiropractors, their wives and assistants, from around the world were in Atlanta for this meeting.

The quarterly seminars are sponsored by Dr. Sid E. Williams, founder.

School during vacation?

Bible school teacher, Carol Withers, tries hard to convince Tiffany Withers, George Withers and Pam Ceilski that many surprises are in store for them during Trinity Lutheran's up-coming vacation school.

Trinity Lutheran

PLEASANTON — Under the theme "The Lord, The Nation, The People," Trinity Lutheran Church, Hopkinton and Del Valle Parkway, will hold their yearly Vacation Bible School from August 2 through 13.

The school is open to all children. All classes will meet from 9:15 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. Pre-schoolers, ages 3 and one half to 4 years, will have classes on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Children entering kindergarten in September will have classes Monday, Wednesday and Friday. First through sixth graders will have classes Monday through Friday.

The Adult Class will meet Tuesday and Thursday, Aug. 3 and 5 and again Monday, Wednesday and Friday, Aug. 9, 11, 13, at the same time — 9:15 to 11:45, under the walnut trees in the parsonage's backyard.

Classes will pertain to Christian citizenship and the role each person should play in everyday life anywhere in the nation.

Registration will be Sundays, July 25 and August 1, after both 8 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. services.

For further information please call 846-7545.

Adventists

LIVERMORE — "Blueprint for a Happy Life" will be the theme of this year's Vacation Bible School at the Seventh-day Adventist Church, 243 Scott St., July 26 through 30.

All children ages 4 to 13 are warmly welcome for a week of learning and fun each day from 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

This year's leader Mrs. Cathy Patterson stated, "There has always been a fascination for young and old alike when it comes to the building of a building and watching the construction crew. The theme this year turns this natural fascination into a helpful learning device. Daily Bible lessons are tied into the adventure of building a 'highrise character.' The Bible is the blueprint and Jesus is the Master Builder."

The daily program will consist of singing, lesson study classes for different age groups, outstanding crafts to be made and kept by the children, and refreshments. On Friday evening, the 30th, at 7 p.m., a graduation program will be held for the children and their families at the church.

Following the program there will be an open house display of school rooms and crafts projects completed by the children. This Bible school is free and all children are welcome. Interested parents may call 447-9066 for further information. The school staff feel very inspired when they remember how much our Lord loved children.

Valley churches offer vacation bible schools

'Create and Celebrate'

DUBLIN — "Create and Celebrate," a new format for sharing Christ with friends in Vacation Bible School will be held at St. Philip's Lutheran Church, Davona Drive and Alcosta Blvd., August 2-6, for grades K through 6.

Classes with stories, songs, crafts and games will be held for children who were in grades K-2 last year with the theme "Shalom, Freedom in Christ."

Children who were in grades 3-6 last year will have an opportunity to choose two of the following workshop sections: "Lion, Witch and Wardrobe," a look into the magical kingdom of Narnia by C.S. Lewis; Slide making of Bible Stories, using costumes, scenery, etc.; Cooking as an introduction to an exciting study of the Bible; Contemporary religious music with a comparative look at traditional hymns; Photography to express an idea or thought of God's creation; Why am I a Lutheran? — a look at similarities and differences with other religions; Banners for church or home; Puppets for use in learning Bible truths; Macrame using a Christian symbol in making a wall hanging and other crafts.

There will also be a Creative Worship service and refreshments each day. For registration, please call Marilyn Harri, 846-4733.

Parkway Baptist

DUBLIN — Parkway Baptist Bible School begins on Monday, July 26 and finishes on Friday, July 30. The Church and school located at 7485 Village Parkway, will have classes for three years through grade 8 from 9 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. daily.

Music, bible study, worship, games, crafts, refreshments and clowns are on the agenda.

For more information, call the church office at 828-0359.

Creative Celebration

Helpers Gretchen Harri and Debbi Koberg join Workshop Leader Doretta Thomsen in showing some of the macrame wall hangings which the children participating in St. Philip Lutheran Vacation Bible School will construct.

church news

Editor's Note: The following excerpt was taken from a Sunday Bulletin given to parishioners at St. Raymond's Catholic parish, Dublin.

WE ARE PUZZLED

Recently the San Francisco Chronicle ran an editorial extravagantly commending the recent Supreme Court decision which permits doctors to perform abortions on girls under 18 without consultation or approval of parents. The Chronicle went further in claiming that the Court reached this 5 to 4 decision by bravely resisting the pressures of bigots. Obviously, in the mind of the Chronicle only a bigot would try to defend the rights of parents.

But on p. 37 of the July 8 Chronicle there is an interesting Emporium ad. The store will pierce ears for fashion jewelry at $5 for each hole. However, there is a catch. The ad states: "Anyone under the age of 18 must be accompanied by a parent or guardian to have ears pierced."

In any event, ear-piercing requires much more family consultation than an attack on life — says The San Francisco Chronicle. Only a bigot could think otherwise! And how docilely Christians accept such moral confusion! ... Let us pray!

Valley Community

PLEASANTON — This Sunday Pastor Leron Heath of Valley Community Church will share the message, "Why Was the Prophet Acting Like a Drunk?" (Jeremiah, Chapt. 23).

Valley Community meets each Sunday for worship in the multi-purpose room of Amador Valley High School on Santa Rita Rd. at 10 a.m. There are Bible classes for all ages at 11.

Pleasanton Presbyterian

PLEASANTON — Worship services for the Pleasanton Presbyterian Community Church will continue to be held in the Sanctuary at Neal Street each Sunday at 10 a.m.

In keeping with his summer sermon series of "Can Jesus still believe in us," the Rev. Robert Vogt will speak this Sunday on "In Your Goodness and Your Badness — Jesus Believes in You!" (Matthew 5:17-48).

God's love is something you do

DUBLIN — "God's Love is Something You Do!" is the theme for this Sunday's service of worship involving the children and young people who have been participating in the "Children's Summer Celebration" at John Knox United Presbyterian Church on Amarillo Road.

This morning worship hour is at 9:30 a.m., and the Rev. Jim Griffes announces that the various classes will be sharing in the service on the theme that love is not just another four letter word but something you do because God has done it for the "least of these."

Although older children are invited to worship with their family this Sunday, there is a pre-school class for 3-5 year-olds during the 9:30 a.m. hour as well as child care for infants and toddlers in the Nursery.

An evening service in the style of the early Christian Church meets at 7 p.m. in the home of the pastor, 7281 Prince Dr., Dublin. The service is informal and singing from the Jubilate, prayer, and sharing and caring.

The "Kids Olympics and Penny Carnival" will be held on Wednesday, July 28, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at the church center.

Come To Chevy's Annual Garage Sale.

Those exciting new 1977 Chevrolets are coming in this fall. So now is the time of year a lot of Chevy dealers are making room for them with a garage sale on their great new 1976 Chevrolets.

This means you'll likely find just about the best deals you can get on some of the best cars and trucks you can get... Chevrolets.

Like the sporty Monza 2+2; the dressy Monza Towne Coupe; that tough Chevy Vega; and the new kind of American car, Chevette. Not to mention Monte Carlos, Impalas and Chevelles.

So come on down to your Chevy dealer now. Because it's that get-a-great-deal-on-a-Chevrolet time of year again.

It's that get-a-great-deal-on-a-Chevrolet time of year again.
